

There are two types of relationships in the E-R model: HAS-A relationships among entities of different logical types and IS-A relationships among entities that are subtypes of a common logical type.